New the house in genial thurder is brought down.
As the bright boquets are darted
We may well feel happy-hearted
That two such stars were star-ted
In our town.

Have you heard sad Cinderella's
"Once a King?"
Have you marked sweet Ella's dancing?
Have you watched her bright eyes glancing,
Have you heard her soul-entrancing Banjo ring?

Se to see them, go to see them,
If you're wise;
But, above all, keep your eyes on
Lady Blanche in gay Ixios,
On this evening, as the lion
Of the skies.

r. Beecher cannot escape by turning upon the lic, as he did in his funeral remarks yester, and denouncing, in a strain of coarse vitation, those who regard the marriage tie as ed. It is not against to most men and such as you, been content to dast a silent mantie of charity over the erring, and withhold the public enlegies by which you have sheed the sensibilities of right-minking people, there would have been no occasion for you to stand defantly on the defensive, and inherpose the perforated corpse of your dead "ion" as a shield between you and the public ensure. It is against you and such as you that the escorching breath of meensed virtue is directed; you, who, without the apology of temptation, free from the passions which blinded those illicit lovers, couly insuit a Christian community by falsome and indecent praises of their guilty consection. But for you, and such as you, this terrible case would have operated as an impressive warning. By your culogies and your marriage erremony, you hold it up as an example.

The Indiana divorce, procured on exparte representations, without notice to the offended husband, in a place distant from the real residence of the parties. You know, Mr. Beecher, and everybody knows, that Mrs. McFarland would not have dare to apply for a divorce here in the State of New Tork, where the parties resided and the facts would have been investigated. In the eye of our laws, and by the rules of our courts, the marriage with McFarland's application for the custody of his McFarland's application for the custody of his McFarland's application for the custody of his was application for the custody of his McFarland's application for the custody of his was every fov children, this is as clear a case of seduction as was ever proved by evidence. The landlady of the house in Amity street swears that Mrs. McFarland applied to her for a room for Richardson, and that he came there in consequence of an arrangement which she had made for him. The room adjoined hers, and the inmates of the house testify that she was frequently in it in the absence of her husband. All this might be innocent anough, if it were not for the light thrown back upon it by the subsequent developments. She afterwards abandons her husband and puts herself under Richardson's protection. When he is wounded, she goes to Mr. Sinclair's house and takes care of him passes whole days and whole nights alone with him, bestowing the most endearing caresses upon him, and per mitting it to be understoed in Mr. Sinclair's family, and by other acquaintances, that she and Richardson were under an engagement of marticle in the introscible to resist the conclusion. ng it to be undersomed in all the and and a state a st

THE KILLING OF TOLBERT.

A Radical Account.

The following is the Radical version of the manner in which Tolbert met his death:

-The London Times considers is a rather remarkable fact that at this moment three distinct 39%c, and 100 casks at 40c per gallon. ROSIN.—Only 47 bbis changed hands at $5 fee About half-past seven e'clock on the night of Becember 2d. Hollingshead, Brown, Freese and White Manuel, started for the capture of Tolbert. They had received information that there was to be a weiding at widow Hinton's residence, about three miles from Greenwood, near Abbeville, and while on their way learned that Tolbert was there. After securing their horses in a neighboring thicket of pines, they started for the house. When near the house Brown, Freese and Manuel stopped, while Hollingshead siyly crept up and looked in the window at the end of the house. He saw Tolbert sitting by the fireplace, conversing with a large party of his friends. About half-past seven e'clock on the night TAR.—112 bbis sold at $2 05 per barrel. GOTTON.—Sales of 2 bales at 22c, 16 bales at 22½c, 14 bales at 23c, 15 bales at 23½c, and 31 bales at 23½c; closing with a fair demand at these figures.

Fish.—60 bbls mulleis sold from vessel at $855 for pine, and $8 for oak bbis.

Hellingshead siyly crept up and looked in the window at the end of the house. He saw Tolbert sitting by the fireplace, conversing with a large party of his friends. Presently some one came set of the door, when he crept under the house, remaining there some ten minutes. While there, he heard Tolbert relate to his friends how he escaped from the Penitentiary. As soon as the person who came out of the door returned into the house, he came out of his hiding place and went to his comrades and told them Tolbert was there. He asked what they should do, as there were some forty men and women there. They all agreed to take Tolbert or die there. Then they pulled of their coals, and, drawing their revolvers, started for the door. With one bound they alighted in the middle of the floor, Hollingshead foremost, anying, "Bill Tolbert, you are my prisoner; surrender, or I'll kill you." Tolbert ran through the house to a door at the foot of the stairs among the women, the house being full. Hollingshead followed, and while grappling with Tolbert, received from him his first shot, which strock him in the side, making a slight flesh wound, and passing out of the door opposite. They still struggled with each other, when Tolbert fired a second time, the shot piercing the ceiling verhead. Brown at that moment rushed in the room and fred. Tolbert then fired his last shot, the ball passing through Hollingshead's leg. Manzel and Freese now entered, and shots were fired in quick succession by Manuel and Brown, Tolbert to the meantime throwing up his arms and extaining, "I surrender!" He then expired. One of my daily companions. My testimonial to its crudition, the accuracy of its definitions, and to the vast etymological research by which it has been enriched through the labors recently bestowed upon it, can hardly be of much value, sustained as the book is in world-wide reputation, by so general an approbation; but I have no hesitation in thus expressing my sense of its merits.—

A YER'S CATHARTIC PILLS. FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A LAXATIVE MEDICINE.

Drugs, Chemicals, &c.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but enlicient purgative. Pitt. The and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. These who have not, know that it cured them these who have not, know that it cured them these who have not, know that it cured them these once it does always—that it never falls through any fastit or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of the certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sagar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bewels, liver, and other organs of the body, rostoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Press randilly cure:

the box, for the following complaints, which these Phase rapidly cure:
For Dysursia or Indication, Lightesnass, Language and Loss of Appetre, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the atomack and restore in healthy tone and action.
For Liven Completer and its various spingtons, Endoughters and its various spingtons, Endoughters Released to the and Endoughters, Endoughters, Stockers, Nameus Colleg and Endoughters, they should be publiclously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action of tensive the observations which causes it.
For Dysenvery or Dianchiga, but one mild does be generally required.
For Englishment, Goly, Grayel, Palpyration of the Heart, Pain is the sign. Back and Livens they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system.
